

The Wind and the Sun

The wind and the sun were arguing.

“I am stronger than you” said the wind.

“No, you are not” replied the sun.

A man was walking down the road.

The sun said, “I know how we can measure our strength. The one that can make the man take off his coat is the strongest. You can go first.”

The wind agreed. The wind began to blow as hard as it could on the man. The harder he blew the tighter the man held his coat. The wind blew very hard but the man did not take off his coat. The wind stopped blowing at the man.

The sun said, “Now it is my turn.”

The sun began to shine and soon the man became hot. He took off his coat.

The sun said to the wind, “I did not make a noise and quietly made the man take off his coat.”

Answer these questions in full sentences

1. Why were the sun and the wind arguing?
2. How did the sun and the wind measure their strength?
3. When the wind blew on the man, what did he do?
4. How did the sun win the argument?
5. What is the moral of the story?

The moral of a story is supposed to teach you how to be a better person.